Diamond Spectacles.

THESE SPECTACLES are manufactured from "MINUTE CRYSTAL PEBBLES" melted together, and are called Diamond on account of their hardness and brilliancy. It is well known that spectacles cut from Brazilian or Scotch pebbles are very injurious to the eye, because of their polarizing light. Having been tested with the polariscope, the diamond lenses have been found to admit fifteen per cent. less heated rays than any other pebble. They are ground with great scientific accuracy, are free from chromatic aberrations, and produce a brightness and distinctness of vision not before attained in spectacles.

Manufactured by the Spencer Optical Manufacturing Comp New York. For sale by responsible agents in every city in the Union. H. A. HEATH & CO., Jewelers and Opticians, are sole Agents for Newport, R. I.,—from whom they can only be obtained. No peddlers employed. Do not buy any unless you see the trade mark ap

TUESDAY, DECEMBER 9, 1873.

Our Presidents.

Washington, Adams, Jefferson, Madison, Monroe, John Quincy Adams, Jackson, Van Buren, Harrison, Polk, Taylor, Pierce, Buchanan, Lincoln and Grant—not one disloyal man among them—not one whose character and life were not respectable. Despite the slanders, engendered by passion, which many of them had to bear, not one can be named who would not have honored any society in which they chose to have moved.

And what a luminous list we have of candidates proposed by minorities—Alexander Hamilton, John Jay, Crawford, Clay, Wirt, Webster, Seward, Cass, and Marcy.

We think these presentations refute the idea that republics are unfriendly to moral and intellectual eminence, or ungrateful to their benefactors. We fear no comparison with the leading men in monarchical governments—least of all with their kings and emperors.

Whatever may be said of the public acts of our American Presidents, the integrity of their private lives is unassailable.

"The entire experience of the United States thus far," says Mr. Seward, "shows that calumny of the chief magistrate is a chronic form of party activity, and that it has always failed of lasting effect." This is true of nearly every President we have had since Washington. And even the great and good Washington did not escape. Jefferson was literally covered with calumnies. His private character was blackened, and his administration ridiculed. He is today, on the other hand, presented to us as a model President. His private life, as portrayed by his recent biographers, is equally worthy of imitation. "His name shines with distinguished lustre in the annals of history."

We might give other illustrations of the truth of Mr. Seward's remark, that "Calumny of the President has always failed of lasting effect." But it seems to be an incurable, as well as a chronic form of attack upon all public men.

John Quincy Adams, who completed a circle of public service, filling fifty years, leaving a stainless record and an imperishable fame, was charged with bargain and corruption. William Henry Harrison was meanly assailed as a coward by the present Democratic governor-elect of Ohio.

Similar assaults upon our later Presidents are familiar to all our readers. Mr. Lincoln endured all manner of reproach and finally suffered death itself.

Mr. Seward one day, in his library, alluding to the melancholy fate of many public men, contending that he himself had been among the most favored, called attention to three portraits hanging on the wall, side by side. "There," said he, pointing to the first, (John Brown,) "he was hanged;" and to the second, (Lincoln,) "he was assassinated;" "and he," third, (Andrew) Johnson,) "was impeached." President Johnson was among Mr. Seward's auditors at the time. Going to another room embellished with portraits of foreign rulers, he asked which of these were more fortunate than he. Not Maximilian nor Louis Napoleon.

In the choice of vice presidents the country has been less discriminating. The contrast is, indeed, remarkable. Aaron Burr is but another name for infamy. John C. Calhoun narrowly escaped being a traitor. Richard M. Johnson is remembered only with contempt.

Those who became presidents—Tyler, Fillmore, and Johnson—were politically sad failures.

Tyler, it is said, was driven from allegiance to the party that elected him by the imperiousness of Henry Clay. From whatever cause, Tyler's infidelity was flagrant, and brought ruin to him and disaster to the Whig party. Mr Fillmore, a man of pronounced anti-slavery sentiments, threw himself into the arms of the slave power immediately on his accession to the Presidency. Fillmore's treachery was even more wicked than Tyler's. Tyler's recusancy was in relation to fiscal affairs, while Fillmore's concerned human rights. Tyler, moreover, was consistent with his antecedents. Fillmore abandoned his. Old John Adams, writing in 1770 to a friend who had apologized for despotism, exclaimed, "Can anything not abominable have provoked you to commence an enemy to human nature?"

Mr. Seward, who had been instrumental in giving President Taylor's policy a direction in favor of freedom, called on Mr. Fillmore on the night after General Taylor's death and entreated the new president to follow the footsteps of his predecessor, promising a hearty and disinterested support to the new administration in return. Mr. Seward was disappointed. Mr. Fillmore commenced and continued his administration in the interest of slavery. It is a curious fact in this connection that in the convention which nominated Mr. Fillmore for Vice President on the ticket with Mr. Taylor would have nominated Mr. Seward instead but not his friends declined the place for him. The nominee for President being a slave holder, the second place was virtually conceded to an anti slavery man: and so Mr. Fillmore was chosen to fill it.

Andrew Johnson became President by virtue of the constitution by its direct action. No member of the convention who voted for his nomination as Vice President intended to thereby make him President. Few, if any, so voting ever considered the probability or possibility of such an event. When the people came to vote for President they voted for Abraham Lincoln without a thought of Johnson for that office. No member of Congress, no Senator, ever contemplated for a moment any idea of deposing Lincoln from the Presidency and instating Johnson therein. So that Andrew Johnson came to be President independent of the will or suffrage of a single human being. The constitution made him President. It is not strange that he, from the start, proved unacceptable to the people. It is not strange that Congress sought to displace him, nor that the Senate attempted to instate one of their own number in the Presidential office instead of one who seemed to them to be an illegitimate occupant.—The Republican.

Welles and Seward.

It is generally known that Mr. Welles owed his appointment to Vice President Hamlin, and that Mr. Lincoln would have gladly received Mr. Banks into the Cabinet instead of Mr. Welles; but Mr. Hamlin objected, insisting on the fulfillment of a promise made to him by Mr. Lincoln before he left Springfield. Nobody will contend that Mr. Welles was selected because of any great fitness on his part for the place. His greatest blunder while Secretary of the Navy, was his voluntary approval of Wilkes' seizure of Mason and Slidell. From the dangerous effect of this rash proceeding it became Mr. Seward's duty to save the country. For this, as well as for other similar acts, Mr. Welles seems never to have forgiven Mr. Seward. He is now, in his leisure hours, engaged in attacking Mr. Adams' oration on Mr. Seward, which he has simply misconceived, without shaking any of its positions.

Some members of the Cabinet favored the colonization of the freedmen, and others would have compensated the slave-holders for the loss of their slaves. Mr. Seward was opposed to both of these measures.

Messrs. Blair and Welles are somewhat lame in their logic. In one breath they assert that Mr. Seward had no controlling influence in Mr. Lincoln's administration, and then they allege that Mr. Lincoln and all the Cabinet except Mr. Seward desired to appoint Mr. Dayton Minister to England. Mr. Seward preferred Mr. Adams, and Mr. Adams was appointed.

Again, Mr. Welles relates at great length how Mr. Seward directed the Secretary of the Navy to hold the mails of the Peterhoff inviolate; that he (Mr. Welles) thought this very wrong, contrary to international law and precedent; that the rest of the Cabinet thought so; that Mr. Sumner, chairman of the committee on Foreign Relations, was sure Mr. Seward had blundered, and Mr. Lincoln himself was converted to the theory advocated by the Cabinet and Mr. Sumner with so much earnestness. The result was that the president confirmed Mr. Seward's orders, and the Secretary of the Navy had to submit.

That Mr. Seward, in the early days of the administration, and in the early stages of the war, was not only Secretary of State, but to a certain extent Secretary of War and of the Navy also, is well known to those who had an inside view of the situation. Documentary proof of this could be cited if necessary. In view of Mr. Seward's great experiment as an executive officer, it was only natural that his counsel and services should, in the exigency, have been brought into requisition. With the exception of the Treasury and Post Office departments, the whole administration at times felt his influence. Of course it was not so apparent after the other officers had acquired experience and familiarity with their duties. A prominent government official met Mr. Seward after hearing of the battle of Antietam, and saluted him with the remark, "That is your victory, Mr. Seward!" He spoke of what he knew. Mr. Seward replied, with emphasis, "Yes, it is!"

The Secretary of State has always occupied an eminent position in every administration. Six of those who have held their place became Presidents—as many more were candidates, one a Vice President, and one a Chief Justice. It is idle to attempt to ascertain the exact status of any of them in the Cabinet, or the particular influence he had over the President. Volumes have been written on this subject in the case of Washington's Administration with little result. No President can escape his individual responsibility. No amount of ability in the Cabinet could have made the administrations of Washington and Lincoln the grand success they were if Washington and Lincoln had not been men of genius themselves. Certainly Andrew Johnson's Cabinet were unable to save him from popular reproach. In conclusion, to quote again the words of Mr. Seward, "The people deal rigorously with their public servants, exacting reasons for their policy, energy in their conduct of affairs, and explanations for failures and disappointments in their administration, yet the people are, nevertheless, just."—[The Republic.

Late Commissioner of Patents.

"Mr. R. H. Eddy has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part, leads me to recommend all Inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases, and at very reasonable charges." Judge Delahay of Kansas and Sherman of Ohio, have resigned to avoid impeachment. Now we would like to hear of the resignation of Judge Durell of New Orleans.

The papers that are abusing Secretary Fish for his slowness and pacific conduct are expressing their delight at Minister Sickles's resignation, when it is well known that he resigns because his superior is too pliant and peaceful for him. We would like to know why the Boston Post, the New York Graphic and other papers should at the same time attack Fish for being lenient, and Sickles for being imperative. Will nothing suit these carping gentlemen?

OLD TIMES AT THE SOUTH.

The editor of the Richmond Enquirer has seen a picture in the Aldine Almanac of old time Southern life, that is, life in the ante bellum period, or the ante rebellum period as Josh Billings would say. The result is that the editor is lachrymose. The picture of the little Ethiopes running up to their beneficent owner on the twenty fifth of December and exclaiming "Christmas present, ole massa!" is too much for this sentimental quill-driver. It carries him back to the golden days of the driver and the slave market and as the fond recollections crowd before memory's eye the editor weeps. It is touching to see the briny tears coursing down the editorial cheek (if there is such a thing as editorial cheek) because the affection which used to exist between master and slave exists no longer; because the negro, who formerly rendered a trifling amount of service in return for which his indulgent master supplied him with all that heart could wish, is now thrown on his own resources: because in a word, the nigger has become a colored man. The happiest peasantry in the world were the slaves in the South says the journalistic Jeremiah. Well, possibly they were, but we would like to have them corroborate this statement before we put much confidence in it. It is all very well for the editor of the Enquirer to sigh for the olden times, but we don't hear any of the ex-slaves sighing. It is very sad that they don't have generous masters who, for a nominal return in labor, give them such food as corn on the cob and array them gorgeously in one new gunny bag per annum, but we shall not bestow any pity on those deserted colored brethren until they ask for it. There is something delightfully humorous about the white people of the South mourning for the olden times because then the black peopele were so much happier than they are now.

SPANISH LOGIC.

The Spaniards are going to surrender the Virginius and then present us with a little for damages inflicted by the vessel. The amount of this little bill is said to be about one hundred million dollars, and the precedent for it is found in the bill of the United States for depredations committed by the Alabama. Even so able a journal as the Nation says that if the Virginius is not an American vessel we cannot object to her seizure, and if she is an American vessel we are responsible for her acts. The Spaniards and the Nation forget one very essential difference between the cases of the Alabama and the Virginius. The Alabama aided acknowledged enemies of the United States, for belligerent rights had been granted to the Confederates both by our own and European governments. But neither the United States nor Spain nor any other European nation has accorded belligerent rights to the Cubans. Before July 1868 there was nothing to prevent our merchants from selling rifles to Cespedes, and so far as international law goes there is nothing to prevent their doing it now, for Spain does not acknowledge that she is at war with the Cubans. Spain tries to be on both sides of the same fence at the same time. If the Cubans are belligerents then ships carrying the Cuban flag may sail into our harbors at their pleasure and without meeting the fate of the Pioneer in this port. If the Cubans are not belligerents than our merchants may ship any kind of merchandise to any Cuban without risk of interference while out of Spanish jurisdiction. Spain must choose her position and maintain it. We cannot allow her to occupy two positions at the same time.

The rules by which the Alabama case was decided and which were adopted at the instance of our government, impose on neutrals burdens grievous to be borne; more grievous, perhaps, than we shall some day be willing to bear; but they do not apply in the present case, because they only affect the conduct of neutrals during the progress of a war. Spain acknowledges no state of war in Cuba, and, therefore, in all consistency she must not attempt to judge our acts by any neutrality laws.

NEWS ITEMS.

Few would regret a declaration of war just now. If any tears were shed, they would be privateers.—[N. Y. Com. Adv.

The French citizens of Chicopee, Mass., held a meeting on Saturday evening to make some formal protest against the aspersions cast upon them by the merchants of the place, because a few of their number have left town with unpaid bills.

A special from Fort Sill, Indian Territory, says that there is no prospect that Comanche Indians will give up murderers, and the military will at once endeavor to arrest marauders. The Texas border settlers and government surveyors will probably suffer heavily.

A religious disturbance has occurred in Leyucontlan, Mexico. The Catholics made attacks on the Protestants with shouts of "hurrah for our religion," and "death to Protestants." Troops were sent to arrest the rioters and prevent further trouble. The Revista newspapers say rioters burned alive the alcalde of Augangos.

The net mackerel fishing at Provincetown has been more successful this season than for the past ten years. The 980 men engaged in it have taken about 625,000 mackerel, worth about 8 cents, amounting to $50,000. The fish have not yet left the coast, and the fishermen are still anticipating good hauls. The largest reported caught to a man is that of George H. Lewis, who caught 12,000, for which he realized $800.

A despatch from Pittsburg, Pa., says that John Ross, the acting secretary of the water commission, has been arrested charged with conspiracy and also with embezzlement in depositing water bonds of Pittsburg in his own name, and in an institution with which the city transacted no business. He was bailed in $20,000. Robert Dickson, president of the National Trust Company, Thomas S. Blair and Frank Ardary, directors, were also arrested on the charge of conspiracy to rob the city. They were bailed in $5000 each. A warrant was issued also for the arrest of Grier, the defaulting cashier, and detectives are to be put on his track.

Louisville has unwittingly committed itself to a grand temperance reform by voting to send drunkards and editors home instead of to the lock-up. Not even the most confirmed inebriates require second treatment. They generally come out about the third day a little more bald, and with a scared look about the eyes that tells of the chastening influence of a good Christian home.

"Now, Johnny," said a venerable lady to her six-year-old nephew, who was persistently denying an offense of which she accused him, "I know you are not telling the truth: I see it in your eye." Pulling down the lower lid of the organ that had so nearly betrayed his want of veracity, Johnny exultingly replied: "You can't tell anything about it, aunt; that eye was always a little streaked."

The finance committee of the Cincinnati board of trade have reported a resolution that all restrictions limiting national banking as a special privilege be removed, and the right to issue notes be given to all companies furnishing capital on the present basis of security to note: that in this way the public debt could be funded at home in bonds at a rate of not over four per cent. interest, and these bonds might be convertible into greenbacks, to secure elasticity of the currency, when necessary; also a resolution asking Congress to forbid the payment of interest on current deposits by the national banks.

A printing office has been opened in connection with the Vienna Institute for the Blind. The whole cost of this undertaking was defrayed by the Imperial Government Printing Office. Dr. Frankl, the superintendent, believes that by special tuition his pupils will be enabled to learn the art of printing so as to equal in dexterity those not so afflicted.

The Ithaca Journal says: "The Syracuse Journal is doing a lively business in advertising for these panicky times. N. Peters, Bro. & Son, dry goods merchants, occupy four columns in the daily with 'The final crash in prices!' D. McCarthy & Co. have two columns on the same subject, and M. C. Palmer & Co., ready made clothiers, have two columns. It surely pays to advertise in Syracuse."

It surely pays to advertise in dull times.

The Louisville Courier Journal opposes the back-pay business, but says:

"On the whole, the eager haste to repeal the salary bill passed at the close of the last session of Congress is rather pusillanimous. The back pay feature of the act was the only objectionable part of it. The increase of salaries was just, and ought not to be reduced back to the original pitiful figure. The present move will not effect the object of those who hasten to take part in it. The deed has been done. Its repeal will only make those who voted for the increase the more conspicuously at fault."

The St. Louis editors are engaged in a type fight of voluminousness and vigor, forgetting that sensible readers have a right to interesting matter in place of the space thus thrown away. The Democrat says: "The sweet bells of the personal journalists are all jangled and out of tune. Dr. Faris did it with his little pen." Also, "There seems to be something wrong with the moral vision of the rural rooster aforesaid: he is slightly cockeyed, as it were." The Globe asks: "Does it occur to the editor of the Democrat that none but dirty birds ever befoul their own nests?" A correspondent in the same paper speaks of "the Philistine wild beasts of the secular press, which latter creatures, thou knowest, are devoid of bowels of compassion, having hearts of India rubber and eyes from which tears flow as readily as blood from a turnip." Editorially, the Globe refers to "the ravings of the irreverent slang-whanger of the Old School Presbyterian."

The London (High) CHURCH TIMES, pleased with the attention its reports of American ritualistic doings have received in this country gives up two editorials in its issue of November 7 to affairs on the western side of the Atlantic. The first is devoted to an account of the quarrel between Bishop Stevens and Rev. T. M. Riley, Dr. Batterson's successor in St. Clement's Philadelphia while the second attacks Bishop Coxe for his charge concerning the C. B. S. Both are good illustrations of the Donnybrook Fair style of fighting, of which the Church Times is apparently fond; and they show that the English Ritualists are quite as ready to abuse the American bishops as their own. Among the gems of rhetoric with which these editorials are studded are "The Protestant Episcopal Pew Renter"; the "Rev. Erastus J. Sealswag, D. D."; the Buffalo Church Rooster"; the "Rt. Rev. A. Lowder Crowe, bishop of Western Gotham"; "Bishop McIlvaine of Ohio, Accuser of the Faithful"; "grasshoppers which cocks (Coxe) cannot eat up"; "such a one horse power engine as Dr. Coxe's controversial ability," etc.

MARINE.—The revenue cutter Moccasin while going eastward found the schooner P. Boice of Great Egg Harbor, Higbee, master, from Philadelphia bound to Quincy Point, Mass., with a cargo of coal, anchored off Squash Meadow with two feet of water in the hold, unhung and the starboard anchor gone. The rudder was unhung while ashore on Hetch Fence Thursday night. The leak was sprung and the anchor lost off Cape Cod. The vessel had been drifting around the sound for the last eight days. Assistance having been asked the schooner was towed into Vineyard Haven Friday afternoon.

Court of Common Pleas.

Chief Justice Brayton is holding an adjourned session of the court of common pleas, within and for the county of Newport, as per adjournment in November. The court came in at half past nine and a jury was empaneled for the trial of the appealed case of John Alfred Hazard against the town council of the town of Middletown for the layout of a certain road or highway and empowering Eugene Sturtevant to build the same.

The following named jurors constitute the panel, with James G. Topham as foreman; Mr. Foreman, Daniel Brown, Harwood E. Read, John S. Crosby, George T. Brownell, Benjamin T. Brown, Joshua T. Durfee, George N. Dennis, George A. Falkner, Charles Dyer, John E. Easton Jr., and John J. Peckham.

The case will occupy two or three days in all probability, and there is considerable interest manifested in it especially among the inhabitants of Middletown and our own community. Messrs. Payne of Providence and Peckham of Newport for the plaintiff and Mr. Sheffield for the defense.

The Evening School.

One of the most interesting institutions of our city is that which affords young people of both sexes who are obliged to work for a living during the day an opportunity of gaining so much of an education as will be a material assistance to them in their efforts to improve their position in life.

The evening school in the Clarke street school house was opened for the season last week. Its sessions are on Monday and Wednesday evenings from seven till nine o'clock It has now had only three sessions but its prospects of usefulness are already very encouraging. The attendance last night was eighty. The total number enrolled is about one hundred. About one fifth of these are girls. Most of these scholars work in the mills or the foundry and but for this night school would have to be content with such instruction as they have already managed to receive. To earnest and industrious young men and women, the night school is of the greatest value, and we are glad that so many persons in our city are sensible enough to avail themselves of its advantages.

The scholars range in age from twelve years to double that. In the lower room are quite a number of the younger scholars studing the rudiments of arithmetic and learning to write on the blackboard. Upstairs are classes in reduction and fractions and about thirty very intelligent looking young men are studying geometry, commercial arithmetic, and bookkeeping.

The school is in charge of Mr. Thomas Clarke, Superintendent of schools, who is assisted by Mr. Henry Clarke and six other teachers, all but one of whom are engaged in the day schools. The orderliness and the progress of the scholars proves the ability and the interest of the teachers. There are a great many young persons in Newport who spend their evenings in idleness or vice who ought to spend at least two evenings a week in improving their minds and preparing themselves to fill better positions in society than they now do. We hope these will remember the night school. Mr. Clarke says that quite a number have expressed a desire to join the school and will do so at its next session. We hope the school will be large and successful.

A Turkish Family Scandal.

A remarkable "scandal," says the Levant Times, which promises to furnish an interesting addition to Eastern causes célèbres, is at present the subject of private judicial investigation in Constantinople. On the death, about a year ago, of a well known Israelitish financier, who had a couple of years before married a widow a good deal younger than himself, his sons-in-law, his principal heirs, could only to their great astonishment find some £6,000 worth of property, out of £60,000 which he had possessed. All traces had disappeared, also an old servant of the deceased, who had been much in his confidence. The deceased's illness was very short, and he had only one medical attendant, a doctor of his own faith, who, as well as the wife, had shut all members of the patient's family from visiting him, and also declined to hold a consultation with other practitioners. After death the widow, who had always "gay" tendencies, and seems, notwithstanding a notable personal defect, to have had some peculiar power of fascination launched out in a flashy style of living, and her two sons, by her first marriage, who had no private means, also distinguished themselves by their profuse expenditure. The moral conviction as to the source of this wealth was always strong in the minds of the deceased's family, but all their efforts failed to discover any proof. Only very lately their suspicions received confirmation in a very singular way. The old servant suddenly reappeared in Constantinople, and avowed that he had received £300 from the widow and her sons to leave the capital and remain in seclusion in the interior. Some time ago he lost one of his sons, and within a month two others followed, and the surviving one was also taken ill. Regarding this as a Divine punishment, he hastened to come to implore the family of his old master to accept his confession as an atonement which might save the life of his remaining child. The widow's sons were at once summoned before the authorities, and, after undergoing an interrogatory separately, the younger one, being informed, it is said, that his brother had already confessed, (which was not the fact,) made a full disclosure as regards the spiriting away of the bulk of the property.

Dwarfs by Manufacture.

The business of manufacturing dwarfs by mutilating children, unhappily was at one time followed as a profession by a body of villains who had it reduced to a system. In the preliminary chapters to "L'Homme Qui Rit," Victor Hugo gives an account of the operations of these persons, which is full of painful interest. They called themselves "Comprachicos," and they labored to supply the demand which existed a couple of centuries ago, in almost every European country, for dwarfs and distorted human beings for the royal palaces and for the homes of the wealthy nobility. The King must have his misshapen jester; the fine lady her fantastic page or footman; the nobleman his hunchback lackey, and even the Sultan his grotesque buffoon for the seraglio. The demand was far greater than the supply afforded by the freaks of nature, and the Comprachicos undertook to make good the deficiency. They fabricated monsters on a large scale. The head-quarters of this infamous fraternity were in England, but its ranks were recruited from all countries, and its operations were extended to other countries. The Comprachicos were suppressed by statute under William and Mary. Their counterparts are said, however, to exist at this day in China. The Chinese operators take a child of two or three years old and put it in a porcelain vase of some odd shape but without lid or bottom, so that the head and feet are exposed. In the daytime the vase is kept upright; at night it is laid upon its side, so that the child may sleep. Thus the child grows, filling up the spaces in the vase with its compressed flesh and twisted bones. This growth in the bottle lasts for several years. At a given period it is without remedy. When the mould has taken and the monster is made, they break the vase and the child comes out of it.

Newspaper Advertising vs. Street Bills.

It is a mooted question that presents itself very frequently to the wide-awake business man: Which is the more profitable way of advertising, through the columns of a leading newspaper, or by means of street handbills or posters? A man well known in business circles for enterprise and shrewdness, who fully believed in the use of printer's ink, but was prejudiced in favor of handbills and the like, recently made a thorough test of both plans. First, of course, he tried his favorite method, and gave it every advantage. He set apart a thousand dollars which he expended as judiciously as possible. He procured posters and street circulars of the most attractive kind, and had them conspicuously and carefully distributed where they would attract the most attention. Parties were sent out on the different lines of railroad, who stopped at the villages and filled them with his announcements. All of this was not done in a hap-hazard way, but was carefully studied out. He estimated as closely as possible the results of the outlay, and found that they would not justify a repetition of the expenditure. But realizing the necessity of making his business known to the public, and still believing that there was power in printer's ink somewhere, he listened to the advice of experienced ones and determined to give the other method a trial. He was not so liberal as with his pet plan, however. He selected the newspaper with the greatest circulation and contracted for three hundred dollars' worth of advertising for a year, and at the end of that time was perfectly astonished at the immense results. It is needless to add, that since then he has been a constant patron of that paper's most desirable columns. He has learned a secret, however, though it has cost him much time and money. With bills and circulars no one ever came in with one in hand, desiring to see some particular goods mentioned; while now almost daily a lady enters and asks to be shown those silks advertised by him in the Times, or his dollar gloves, or his two-and-six handkerchiefs. Now, upon a moment's consideration, the causes for this wide difference in results are apparent. In the first place no one stops to read a street notice, and the idea of catching it on the fly is ridiculous. It is impossible to convey information to the class of people whose custom is valuable through the agency of the exposed side of a high fence. Again, take a little pains in noticing who and how many receive street circulars at the hands of a distributing boy, and you will see how ineffectual they are for advertising. Not one in a hundred will fall into the hands of a person who will read it. On the other hand, ask your friends what they read, observe persons with newspapers, and you will be surprised to find what popular reading matter advertisements make. Many readers often give them the first attention. There are those who read the news first, reserving the new advertisements for dessert; while others sandwich them in between the local and telegraphic. Newspapers always make paying customers, and those who influence the trade of others, because their readers are intelligent, posted and always on the alert for news and bargains.

Look at it in another light. For one dollar an advertisement may be inserted in one of the best columns of a paper having a circulation of nine or ten thousand. That advertisement, if we allow five readers to every copy issued, will pass before the eyes of over forty thousand persons. This is equal to eighty thousand handbills, admitting that half are received, which at two dollars per thousand (a low estimate for bills and circulating) would amount to the comparatively enormous sum of one hundred and sixty dollars. The same, if not a greater difference exists with posters. One hundred two-sheet bills, on the boards cost about fifteen dollars. The same amount of money will place fifteen different announcements before thirty thousand persons once or it will insure the insertion of one advertisement thirty times, which is equal to presenting it to one million two hundred thousand persons. This great contrast, of course, will not hold good in the case of newspapers of limited circulation, though advertising in any newspaper is cheaper than four times its circulation of bills at the same price. Newspapers are bought and paid for. They are sought after, whereas handbills cannot be given away.—Troy Times.

A Warning to Young Men.

The American girl of book is an ideal existence. The real girl, who has just returned from the country, and is occupying herself with preparations for the approaching winter, is not at all difficult to describe. She is a girl of immense energy and but little physical strength. She has, if she can be judged by what she accomplishes, a noble digestion; or perhaps, to be more accurate, she has nobly triumphed over her digestion, and reduced it to complete submission. She is not highly educated, nor does she speak all foreign languages with smoothness and correct idiom; indeed, she has been known to play strange tricks with her own tongue. She is lively, but not witty; she is fond of laughing, without caring very much at what she laughs; she is noisy and loud when she dares to be.

As a general rule she knows little or nothing of those matters which used to be considered essential parts of a woman's education, and intends, if she is rich, to have housekeeping, when once she is married, done for her by some one else; and if she is poor, she does not think about it any more than she can help. Her notions about marriage itself are a curious mixture of ideas derived from novels, poems, and such acquaintance with the world as girls get from the conversation of young men who dance the German with them through the winter, and walk on the cliffs at Newport with them in the summer. Her life, if she is rich, is in general one of thoughtless pleasure; if she is poor, her horizon is filled with the mirage of what she might be if she were only rich. She has in her mind an ideal husband, whom usually she does not marry. But the ideal American girl—we will not profane the memory of the happy age when all the world believed in her existence, by cynical comparisons. [The Galaxy for Dec.

"Freddy's Own One."

A correspondent of a Hartford paper relates this malicious joke on a too confiding husband: "Mr. Fred and Mrs. Alice Y— had returned from their wedding tour and given out invitations to several friends to spend an evening with them at their house. In the course of an hour after the party had gathered, several fun-loving young ladies and gentlemen determined to perpetrate a joke on the happy husband. Accordingly, one of them whispered to Fred's wife that Mrs. So-and-so wanted to speak to her a moment up stairs. And Alice excused herself directly and left the room. The lady who awaited her already understood the game and talked very deliberately about the sewing society, and of it hadn't better sew for the colored folks of the South this winter, or matters about as important. A young lady of about Alice's size was then sent into the next room, which was dark, and cuddled herself up on one end of the sofa, and an aunt of Fred's came to him and whispered the awful news that she was on the sofa in the sitting room, feeling badly over something. Fred's face immediately lengthened, and he excused himself and went into the dark room, as he supposed to see his wife. The snow reflected just light enough to enable him to see a female form on the sofa with a handkerchief at her face. 'Alice, my poor, sweet dear! what is the matter?' he exclaimed in a low, plaintive voice, which the listening company in the parlor heard, nevertheless. 'My little lamb—Freddy's own one,' he said, sitting down beside her and drawing her into his arms, what, is the matter? Speak, won't you, and tell Freddy all about it?' And then followed a number of softly sibilant kisses. She enjoyed it there on the sofa, and her whole person shook so with amusement that 'Freddy' thought she was weeping all the time and greatly agitated. The company in the parlor enjoyed themselves wonderfully during this scene, because, listening keenly, they heard every word that Fred uttered. But pretty soon Alice herself returned, and then they concluded the joke had been carried far enough, and pushed opened the folding-doors. There sat Fred and Miss B——, 'arm in arm' and 'wing-and-wing.' The one was tenderly repeating 'my own Alice,' and the other was nearly suffocated with laughter and squeezes and kisses. In an instant after the light struck them Fred saw his mistake. And such a sheepish-looking, crest fallen individual as he was was never seen before. The company raised a shout of laughter. His face glowed with a rosy hue and he wanted to faint and sink through the floor; but finally he concluded to laugh it off and make the best of it. As for Alice—well, no matter."

The St. Louis Globe remarks that the Democrat will have no heavy editorials on any subject later in the alphabet than B for the present, as only two volumes of the new Cyclopedia have yet been published.

ALWAYS DANGEROUS.—For a family to be without Williams' Extract Jamaica Ginger.

Living Advertisements.

A medicine that has done more than all the prescriptions of the pharmacopœia to protect the human system against the bodily ills superinduced by unhealthy surroundings, is certainly worthy of universal confidence. It is mainly on account of its extraordinary preventive properties that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is so exceedingly popular in localities subject to the visitation of miasmatic fevers and other diseases produced by empoisoned air. A family that has escaped sickness during a sickly season in consequence of using the Bitters as a safeguard, is a living advertisement of the virtues of the preparation. The whole neighborhood realize the fact. "I wouldn't have believed it," says one, "I scarcely credited the advertisements; but one must believe what one sees," says another. "It is the very thing we need in this unwholesome section of country," remarks a third. And the result is that the instinct of self-defense, the first law of nature, induces three fourths of that community to obtain a supply of the great vegetable antidote before the next sickly season sets in. In winter, when the system requires extra vigor and elasticity to enable it to baffle the effects of damp and cold, the Bitters will be found particularly serviceable. Rheumatism will not be apt to fasten upon muscles and nerves that have been braced up by this excellent invigorant and tonic; nor will the severities of the season, which have such a disastrous effect on the pulmonary organs of the feeble and delicate, be likely to exercise the same untoward influence in cases where the stomach and the external strata of the body (which always sympathize with the digestive organs) have been toned and stimulated by a course of the restorative. The dread indigestion and the irregularities of the bowels which proceed from sudden changes of weather may always be averted by a timely use of the Bitters.

PIMPLES AND HUMORS ON THE FACE.—In this condition of the skin, the VEGETINE is the great remedy, as it acts directly upon the cause. It cleanses and purifies the blood, thereby causing humors of all kinds to disappear.

CHAPPED HANDS, face, rough skin, pimples, ring worms, salt-rheum and other cutaneous affections cured, and the skin made soft and smooth, by using the JUNIPER TAR SOAP, made by CASWELL, HAZARD & Co., New York. WHEREAS, a libel hath been filed in the District Court of the United States for the District of Rhode Island, on the 5th day of December, A. D. 1873 by Robert [illegible] La Gar and Andrew Reed, of the city, county and state of New York, copartners, in business, under the name of La Gar & Reed, against the steamboat Plymouth Rock, now lying in the port of Newport, in said district, her engines, boilers, tackle, apparel and furniture, in a cause of civil and maritime, and praying the usual process and monition of the Court that all persons interested in the said steamer Plymouth Rock, her engines, boilers, &c., may be cited to answer the premises, and all due proceedings being had, that the same may be decreed to be sold, and the proceeds thereof distributed according to law.

GENERAL NEWS.

Washington.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 8.—The Cuban complication is regarded by the state department tonight as in a very favorable condition. The stories in regard to the serious embarrassment of the Castelar government at Madrid are not credited. While the department has not officially received the resignation of Minister Sickles, a private despatch from the legation at Madrid makes it known here as a fact.

CONGRESS.

In the United States Senate, yesterday, numerous bills were introduced and referred. Mr. Wright of Iowa made a speech in favor of the repeal of the salary bill. James R. Young was elected executive clerk and the Rev. Mr. Sunderland chaplain. In the House of Representatives much new business was introduced, embracing a bill from Mr. Pierce to remit the duties on goods destroyed by the Boston fire, and a bill from Mr. Butler for the relief of sufferers by the same disaster. A general amnesty bill was reported by the committee on rules and passed 141 to 29. Majority and minority bills were reported from the special committee on the repeal of the salary bill, and several amendments are offered. The discussion was deferred until today. A resolution to recognize the Cuban insurgents as belligerents was voted down.

CONFIRMATIONS.

The Senate in executive session today confirmed the following nominations: Martin Welker as district judge of the northern district of Ohio, vice Charles T. Sherman, resigned; Nathaniel Shipman as district judge of Connecticut vice Shipman, resigned. United States attorney, George P. Sanger for Massachusetts; Henry C. Hall of Connecticut, consul-general at Havana; Benjamin Gerrish, jr., of New Hampshire, consul at Bordeaux; Joseph J. Henderson, consul at Amoy; John L. Neay, consul at Windsor, Canada; A. Bridgland of Indiana, consul at Havre; Lemuel L. Glasgow, consul at Glasgow; collectors of internal revenue, David F. Hollister, second district of Connecticut; Benjamin F. Walles, ninth Massachusetts; Alexander R. Shepard, governor district of Columbia.

THE VIRGINIUS.

Commander Braine of the Juniata, now at Santiago, has been instructed to receive the remainder of the Virginius prisoners, and Admiral Scott of the Worcester, flagship of of the north Atlantic fleet, will receive the surrender of the Virginius. It is probable that Admiral Scott will transfer his flag to the Colorado as soon as that vessel reaches Key West.

THE NAVY.

Secretary Robeson has asked for a special appropriation of $5,000,000.

The bureau of steam engineering at the Portsmouth navy yard is working part of its force night and day. The boiler makers work two gangs, night and day. Mr. Toby Burke, the foreman, has charge by day, and Lewis I. Philips by night. The blacksmiths and part of the machinists work by night. The Plymouth's boilers are to be ready in sixty days.

The ordnance and war material sent from Louisville to Pensacola consisted of 26 thirteen inch mortars, 48 nine and ten-inch guns, a 300-pounder Parrott, 4350 thirteen and twenty-inch shells, 1800 nine to twenty-inch solid shot, 1500 hand grenades and 1650 100-pound shells.

The Powhattan and Manhattan are detained at Lewes, Del., by heavy weather.

The gunboat Fortune, from Washington for Key West, passed Fortress Monroe yesterday afternoon.

MR. EAMES.

Mr. Eames has introduced into the House a bill to repeal the tax on deposits in savings banks.

DEATH OF JUDGE UNDERWOOD.

Judge Underwood, of Virginia, a fast friend of the late Chief Justice, and a prominent actor in Virginia politics for the last few years, and devoted to the success of the Republican party, died here last night, from an attack of apoplexy.

THE KANSAS.

The Kansas has arrived at Santiago.

New York.

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—Work at the navy yard went forward today in the same energetic manner as last week. The Colorado left the cob dock yesterday and went to the Battery to take aboard her war material. It is expected that she will sail tonight. She has taken on board nearly thirty tons of powder. Riggers commenced work on the Florida today. All defects in her engines have been remedied. Engineers were busy today on the boilers of the Roanoke. Work on the Dictator is going on as rapidly as possible. The Spanish frigate Arapiles lies as heretofore, in the dry dock, blockaded by the sunken coal barge. Dispatch boat Gettysburg arrived from Boston today. Storeship Supply is loading stores for Key West.

WORK AT THE NORFOLK, VA., NAVY YARD.

A Norfolk, Va., dispatch says the Mayflower is to be fitted out immediately as a torpedo boat. Work is going forward on the Savannah with all possible dispatch. General Myer hastened back to Wilmington from here, last night, in response to a dispatch from the War Office, to prepare a signal corps for the field.

Miscellaneous.

HAVANA, Dec. 7.—Captain-General Jovellar authorizes the statement that the entire island is tranquil. He has no doubt that all will be arranged peaceably and satisfactorily, without the slightest difficulty. He now declares that he does not intend to leave Havana, or transfer his powers into the hands of General Morelo, the Segundo Cabo, who arrived by the last steamer from Spain. The feeling of the people of Havana is quieter and no disturbance is apprehended. The disposition to comply with the mandates of the home government and the obligations of the treaty with the United States, without further discussion, is becoming general.

LONDON, Dec. 8.—A special to the Daily News, from Madrid, says a Cabinet crisis is imminent. Great indignation is manifested at President Grant's message, and Senor Castelar's alleged pandering to the United States.

MEMPHIS, TENN., Dec. 8.—General N. B. Forrest having offered his services to General Sherman, expressing the belief that he could raise from 1000 to 5000 men very speedily, General Sherman replies that he has sent his application to the Secretary of War with the indorsement:—

"Respectfully referred to the Secretary of War for file. Among the hundreds of offers that come to me I deem this worthy of a place among the archives to await coming events. I regard N. B. Forrest as one of the most extraordinary men developed by our civil war, and were it left to me in the event of a war requiring cavalry I would unhesitatingly accept his services and give him a prominent place. I believe now he would fight against our national enemies as vehemently as he did against us, and that is to say enough.

(Signed) W. T. SHERMAN, General.

HAVRE, Dec. 7.—A grand funeral service, for those who lost their lives on board the Ville du Havre, was held in this city, yesterday. Subscriptions for the survivors have been raised in France, to the amount of 40,000 francs.

The latest reports in the English papers in regard to the conduct of the officers and crew of the Ville du Havre are confused and contradictory. A telegram from Glasgow says the captain of the Loch Earn has reported to the owners of his ship that the charges reflecting on Capt. Surmont, of the Ville du Havre, are untrue, and those against the crew greatly exaggerated.

BOSTON, Dec. 8. Great activity continues at the Charlestown navy yard. The Franklin will be ready for sea in a few days. Her sails will be bent tomorrow, and by Wednesday or Thursday she will go into commission. It will require 600 seamen to man her, and drafts are expected in a day or two from New York and Portsmouth to supply the requisite number. The Brooklyn will also require some 100 seamen when she is ready for sea, which will be about the 1st of January.

Spanish Existence.

A writer on Spanish domestic life says that "at early morn the master rises, and his little cup of chocolate, an egg, and a slice of melon await him in the sala, or large sitting room—to English eyes a most comfortless place: very large, stone flagged, with a few massive chairs, walls painted in the rudest way, and one large table in the midst. The rooms, owing to the heat, are always kept darkened by means of closed shutters throughout the day—some of the windows have glass, some not; but all are strongly protected, without exception, by a strong cage of massive iron work outside. The senora has the chocolate in her bedroom, at the open window, enjoying the fresh morning breeze. All the Spaniards rise, as a rule at five or six in the summer, to enjoy the only enjoyable time of the summer day. At one o'clock they have dinner, the comida, and after that follows the two hours siesta in a darkened room. Evening then draws on, the delicious night breeze rises and blows freshly from the hills, and the ladies go out in groups to the alamedo for the paseo or walk. Such is the Spanish lady's day. She has, however, her criadas to look after, and, above all, her dresses to make or superintend, and her graceful mantle to arrange. It is quite a striking sight to pass down the streets from six to eight at night, and see the graceful carriage of the head and the stately upright walk of the Spanish ladies with their long white dresses trailing behind them in a cloud of dust. How they manage to walk over the rough unpaved, uneven streets without a trip is a mystery. At about ten all retire to rest, to rise up refreshed for another uneventful day.

TUESDAY, DECEMBER, 9, 1873.

Sheep Husbandry Abroad.—From statistics relative to the production of wool it appears that Great Britain and Ireland grow twice as much wool as the United States, although there are more than thirty states and two of them are larger than the former countries. In fact it is stated that the colony of Australia, so recently populated, grows as much wool as the states, viz 130,000,000 lbs. while Great Britain and Ireland produce 160,000,000 lbs. In England a numerous well fed flock of sheep is considered to be essentially necessary for the well doing of every upland farm, and it is generally seen that those who keep the most sheep and feed them highly enrich themselves and their land. How is it so many farmers in America keep no sheep?

Sheep and Cows Together.—A correspondent writes: I have been farming and keeping sheep nineteen years. During the last seven years I have been keeping thoroughbred Southdowns, carefully selected from some of the best flocks in the country. My lambs have averaged me $10 apiece, and the wool $2 for each sheep. I think I can keep one sheep and one cow to every acre, on a given amount of pasture land, just as well as to keep the cow alone. In regard to alleged injurious effects affirmed by some of keeping sheep and dairy cows in the same pasture, I will state that I have never observed them. And if there were any injurious effects resulting from the practice, it would be confined to the short space of time intervening between first turning to pasture and harvest, say from the middle of May to the first or middle of July. Sheep prefer and will cling to the old pasture, while cows are continually seeking and longing for new.

Sugar Beets For Swine.—Jonathan Talcott gives a statement of an experiment performed on a Suffolk pig, where sugar beets were largely employed for fattening. The animal was about a year old, and the feeding on boiled sugar beets, tops and root, began on the 16th of August, and was continued three times a day until the 1st of October, after which ground feed was given, consisting of two parts of corn and one of oats, three times a day, till the animal was slaughtered, the meal being mixed with cold water. The result was, on the 16th of August, when the sugar beets feeding was begun, the weight was 300 lbs.; September 1, 330 lbs.; October 1, 430 lbs.; November 1, 520 lbs. This is the substance of the statement given, by which we perceive that the increase the last of August, when fed on boiled sugar beets, was at the rate of two pounds per day: the same rate of increase on the same food continued through September. When fed on ground corn and oats made into cold slop, the gain for the next fifty days was less than a pound and half per day.

Turnips and Milk.—A correspondent states that last winter he fed turnips in the usual way at milking time to five cows, until the milk and butter became so strong that it could not be used. He commenced feeding immediately after milking and found that "there was not a particle of turnip flavor in the milk or butter." After a time the taste returned. On investigation, he found that one of the cows was nearly dry, and was milked once a day. She gave but a pint of milk per day, so that when fed in the morning she could have had only about half a pint of milk in her bag; yet this received so much taste from the turnips that it spoiled the milk of four other cows in full flow. To make the test complete, he had her milked twice a day, when the difficulty at once ceased, and did not recur. Evidently a very small amount of milk in the udder will suffice to do the mischief, and if drying off cows are milked only once a day while on turnip feed, their milk should not be mixed with that from the rest of the herd.

SIXTEEN OIL PAINTINGS IN A BOOK!

Never before was such an idea attempted for book illustration; every one who has seen it pronounces it SUPERB. Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe's latest work,

Women in Sacred History,

is a series of narrative sketches, drawn from Scriptural, historical, and legendary sources, ILLUSTRATED WITH SIXTEEN CHOICE OIL CHROMOS, after paintings by the most celebrated artists of the world, giving a rich and magnificent variety of Oriental costume and beauty. Mrs. Stowe in her charming style has written a book full of interest, and without a dull page in it, which even if not illustrated would sell rapidly; but the BRILLIANT OIL-COLOR PICTURES make it one of the most unique, original, and remarkable books ever offered. The pictures, if published separately, would readily sell for $2 each or $32, while the entire book, with the sixteen pictures, together with sumptuous bindings of the volume, can be had for one-fifth of that amount. The book is published in ENGLISH and in GERMAN, and is making a tremendous and salesmen, because it is absolutely new and makes money in it. To get plenty of work and good pay, send for terms, circulars, &c., to J. B. FORD & CO., New York, Boston, Chicago, San Francisco, or Cincinnati. nov25-4w

FIRE INSURANCE.

THE undersigned represents the following First Class Fire Insurance Companies, and is prepared to issue policies on all classes of risks at current rates. Dwelling houses and their contents insured for one, three, or five years, on the most favorable terms. Particular attention given to SUMMER RESIDENTS to insure their buildings when occupied a portion of the year, without extra charge.

Ætna Ins. Co. of Hartford, Assets,	$5,396,380
Ins. Co. of North America, Philadelphia, Assets	3,276,739
Hartford, of Hartford, Assets,	2,201,396
Royal, of England,	10,000,000
Orient, of Hartford,	705,520

These companies were among the HEAVIEST LOSERS at the Chicago and Boston fires, every dollar of which was promptly paid. It costs no more to insure in them than it does in the small city and weak concerns that are sure to go to the wall in time of trial—the only time, in fact, when an Insurance Company is of any service.
If desired, property in OTHER TOWNS AND CITIES will be taken, and be covered in these and other reliable companies. L. D. DAVIS,

Iron in the Blood

PERUVIAN AN IRON TONIC SYRUP

MAKES THE WEAK STRONG.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an aliment, as easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia. Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhoea, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low state of the system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form, its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building up an Iron Constitution.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures, to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.
